1. Rugs should be kept away from direct sunlight because that might fade the color. At the same time, rugs should also not be kept in places with high humidity.
2. Do not rub the rug too harshly, in the case of a spillage. Get the surplus liquid off the rug first, and then start cleaning from the edge to the middle of the spot. In extreme cases, it is advisable to get some professional help.
3. Vacuum your rugs regularly. Due to consistent use, the dirt particles seep in the material of the rugs which make them look dull. To get rid of this dirt and bring back the luster of the rugs, timely vacuuming is crucial. While vacuuming, start from the center and then move towards the fringes. Vacuum it on the lower side as well.
4. It is common for a new rug to shed some of its fibers, so don't fret. However, if the threads start to unwind, do not pull them further. Cut them with a pair of scissors.
5. Too much pressure should not be put over rugs. It is advisable not to drag furniture over them.

To do away with the possibility of extreme wear and tear due to being placed in high traffic areas, move furniture occasionally.

6. Rotate your rug once or twice a year. This way, the traffic gets dispersed all over the surface of the rug. Thereby, maintaining a uniform look of the rug.
7. For times when you wish to give your rug a break, fold it into a roll and not a fourfold. This helps in keeping its look intact till the time you wish to use it again.
